

Let them eat (locally made) pie

Today's the day when The Sustainable Table's Eat Well Guided Tour of America comes to town.

You can get in on the action by bringing a pie made with local ingredients to share tonight from 6 to 8 at Maggie's Vegetarian Vittles, 318 N. Eighth St. It can be sweet or savory — quiches, shepherd's pie, chicken pot pie, tofu pot pie, apple pie or more.

Slow Food Nebraska is hosting the tour stop and the family-style potluck dinner held outside the Haymarket eatery. Short films about the food industry will follow.

Reservations are requested; send an e-mail to maggiesvegetarian@gmail.com. The dinner event is free and open to the public.

Other stops near Lincoln today include a farm tour at Common Good Farm in Raymond at 2 p.m. and a tour at Branched Oak Farm & Farmstead First Creamery at 4 p.m.

The Sustainable Table is a nonprofit that celebrates local food and sustainable agriculture.

— Happening —

